Information about assessment regulations

All programmes leading to LJMU awards operate within the University's Academic Framework.

Opportunities for work-related learning (location and nature of... activities)

Work based learning:
Learning about self and others
Learning and practicing key skills in management and HRM specifically Experiencing the world of work
Developing solutions to work based problems in workshops and tutorials
Experience and learning how to manage oneself in a range of situations
Encourage students to engage with the development of employability skills by completing a self-awareness statement

There is on-going development of graduate skills embedded in the programme. All 41 skills will be taught, practised and assessed via core modules within the programme. Work related skills form part of workshop and tutorial tasks throughout the programme. Specialist speakers at appropriate points in key modules enhance the work related experience for the students.

Level Four

HR Practitioner skills employs case-based and role-play techniques to develop real world skills in a practitioner context supported by CIPD qualified practitioner input. The Business and Finance module will give HR students a wider understanding of other functions and the ability to work effectively with budget and forecast data.

Level Five

Particular reference is made to Professional Practice and Preparation for Work at level five where students are exposed to real work simulations which develop a range of skills. Assessment for Professional practice involves the interpretation and offering of solutions to a real world based case study. Assessment for Preparation for Work includes reflective learning logs.

Placement Year

Students work in a HRM related job. They enter into a learning agreement between themselves and their employer and LBS concerning their personal and business skills development. Students produce learning logs which are assessed by LJMU and work-based supervisors. They also complete a portfolio of evidence which is assessed and forms part of the evidence for Associate Membership of CIPD and can also be presented to gain the award of Licentiate membership of City and Guilds Institute.

Level Six

Through the investigative report, students research either a live HR business problem connected to a company or research a HR business related issue. The research is undertaken individually with support from action learning sets and supervision and written up as a 9,000 word analytical report.

In Strategic HRM - students analyse a range of HRM strategy problems using case studies which focus on the development of work related skills.

Students who do not take a placement year before moving into level six will be encouraged to undertake paid and voluntary opportunities to develop the employer assessed behaviours linked to the Intermediate Standards. Through the portfolio of evidence built up and employer verification students will have clear direction about any additional requirements on HR behavioural mapping required to meet CIPD Intermediate standards and obtain Associate Membership of CIPD.

PDP and CPD planning forms part of the overall development of individual students on the programme and students are encouraged to participate in skills development and to collect work related evidence for HR behavioural mapping from level one onwards.
