Educational aims of the programme

To provide a context in which to explore Creative Writing and Film as media of communication for the individual and the group, paying due regard to audiences, institutions and the marketplace

To familiarise students with the skills and conventions of professional practice, whether producing audio-visual artefacts or prose fiction, poetry, scriptwriting and other forms of creative writing, and the values that accompany them

To guide students towards a critical and historical understanding of film, television and writing and publishing cultures

To foster students creative enthusiasm for Creative Writing and Film and develop the capacity to respond creatively to a broad range of stimuli

To facilitate opportunities for students to develop the technical skills and the artistic and cognitive insights necessary to engage effectively in the study and practice of Creative Writing and Film.

To promote the development of graduates who are critical independent thinkers possessing a range of transferable skills, particularly the development of initiative, self-motivation, team, organisational and communication skills.

To enrich teaching and learning by supporting staff development and research which engages theoretical, practical, commercial and artistic investigation and furthers academic and artistic discourse both within and beyond the institution.

To encourage students to reflect on and develop their employability skills and to complete a Self-awareness Statement.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment

The methods used to enable outcomes to be achieved and demonstrated are as follows:

Knowledge and understanding is acquired through lectures, seminars, tutorials, screenings, group work, practical workshops, independent study and work-based learning. Furthermore knowledge and understanding is also effected by demonstrations/workshops (short expositions to demonstrate skills and techniques and to establish the parameters of professional practice); master classes (expert workshops by visiting practitioners to familiarise students with current industrial practice); work-related learning projects (work-based or simulated); and showcases (opportunities taken to audience with discussion of finished work and works in progress).

Knowledge and understanding is assessed by coursework, examinations, class contribution and group productions of audio-visual artefacts. Coursework includes: essays of various length; reviews; original writing; individual and group presentations; individual and group critical self-evaluation; blogs and websites; logbooks; self-reflective group portfolios; research exercises; individual work-based learning reports; dissertations; commentaries. Examinations include: class-tests and unseen exams. Group productions of audio-visual artefacts include: photo-storyboard, factual and fictional video productions.

Intellectual skills are promoted through lectures and applied by students in seminars, group work, tutorials, independent study and the production of assessments. Some or all of these skills may also be developed through reflection on work-based learning and production of written texts and of films

Intellectual skills are assessed through the range of forms of assessment used on the Film Studies and Creative Writing programmes. The forms of assessment are structured over the three years of the degree to allow students to develop the ability to think independently, to formulate and research their own topics, and to build on their knowledge and interests. Specifically, critical and evaluative coursework essays, oral presentations and viva are employed to assess learning outcomes. At Level 6, students write a dissertation or compile a portfolio which addresses key thinking skills. A limited number of formal (unseen) examinations at all levels provide students with the opportunity to organise information and structure a reasoned argument under limited time conditions.

Professional practical skills are acquired through lectures, seminars, tutorials, group work, the production of assessments and particularly through independent study and practice. Skills based practical classes and applied production projects are the basic means of teaching and learning practical skills. Self, group and tutor evaluation and feedback inform the learning process particularly at Levels 4 and 5. At Level 6, students have a significant element of independence to experiment and test practical skills but meet regularly with staff and peers to discuss methodologies and progress of the practical work. Some of the skills are taught and assessed in non-practice based modules. All students receive initial guidance on how to use film/creative writing related information resources located in the Learning Resource Centres and/or on-line.

Assessment of practical skills is via coursework, blogs, websites, workshop and editing/publication projects. Assessment can involve the staff team monitoring and marking both process and editing/film production against agreed and written criteria. Assessment of process learning is supported either by commentaries or individual logs or self-evaluative essays or viva voce. Furthermore there are more traditional modes of assessment involved; for example both oral and written coursework, and examinations, throughout the curriculum.

Transferable skills are developed through seminars, group work, tutorials, independent study, work-based learning. Sustained independent learning is supported by individual or group tutorials, individual or group supervision, and the formulation of learning agreements. Independence both artistically and in terms of scholarship increases incrementally with the levels. Students are encouraged to access IT support and use IT skills throughout all levels. Canvas is used to support students learning on the majority of modules. The ethic of group work is established at Level 4 and developed throughout the Programme. Communication and creative skills and endeavour are central to the programme and inform all practical and production work at all levels.

Assessment of transferable skills is through coursework at all levels. The forms of assessment are structured over the three years of the degree to allow students to develop certain transferable skills, such as those of presentation (oral or written) and communication, collaboration, self-reflection and the skills involved in learning independently.

Programme structure - programme rules and modules

At Level 4 all modules are core. Students take 60 credits Film Studies modules and 60 credits Creative Writing modules.

At Level 5 all modules are optional.

At Level 6 all modules are optional. However, the following pre-requisites apply:

- In order to take Final Film Pre-Production & Film Production at Level 6, students must have taken Experimental AND Short Filmmaking at Level 5.
- In order to take Mixed Media Research Project, students must take at least one of the following: Experimental Filmmaking or Short Filmmaking
- Students can take Mixed Media Research Project OR Dissertation. Both these modules are Year-long.
- In Creative Writing, a related module in Poetry, Prose and Script at Level 5 is a pre-requisite for continuing with the form at Level 6. Similarly, students wishing to study a Semester 2 module at Level 6 would have to take the related Semester 1 module.

Students will be offered the opportunity of study abroad at Level 5.

Option A: replacement of 60 credits of Level 5 with appropriate study abroad

The programme will offer the opportunity of 60 credits of study at Level 5. Students will be enrolled on a 360 credit honours with study abroad programme. A 60 credits Level 5 study abroad module 5030CWFS will normally replace the semester 2 modules on the standard programme. This study abroad should cover the same learning outcomes as the modules being replaced. The modules to be studied in the host institution must be agreed in advance. The Level 5 mean for the final award mark will be calculated based upon the 120 credits at Level 5. and/or:

Option B: additional study year abroad following Level 5

The programme will offer the opportunity of an additional study year abroad following Level 5. Students will be enrolled on a 480 credit honours with study abroad programme. Of those 480 credits, 120 will be taken via a Level 5 study abroad module 5031CWFS. The modules to be studied in the host institution must be agreed in advance. The Level 5 mean for the final award mark will be calculated based upon the 240 credits at Level 5.

Currently we are partnered with a university in Copenhagen, where student can spend a semester at level 5.

From 2016-17 we have a new partnership with San Pablo University in Madrid, Spain. We are also in discussion with the University of Connecticut.

There are other opportunities to gain work experience in Malta and China. Both the ERASMUS exchange and the work placements are highly competitive.

Information about assessment regulations

All programmes leading to LJMU awards operate within the University's Academic Framework.
<https://www.ljmu.ac.uk/about-us/public-information/academic-quality-and-regulations/academic-framework>

Opportunities for work-related learning (location and nature of activities)

Opportunities for work-related learning and work-based learning on the Creative Writing and Film Studies programme are offered by modules at Levels 4, 5 and 6:

In Level 4 students are offered early glimpses of experience of the world of work with CareerSmart: Explore. Students have the opportunity to produce fiction and non-fiction films working to a professional standard. All practical filmmaking modules in the programme provide ample space for other forms of work-related learning such as role plays, simulations and on and off-campus activities.

At Level 5 students experience with the world of work increases when students are required to produce filmed pieces of work of increased scope, size and the duration of production is much larger than at Level 4. Students often have to work with professional actors and in the process come even closer to the work and conditions of professional production while the whole production process is designed as a simulation of a professional production process.

In the Work Based Learning: Film Studies (Option Module) students are asked to secure an 80 hour long placement with a media company or organisation and report on their experience and on the company's structure in detail.

To further develop and enhance our students employability, and drawing on the existing research and industry expertise we have on the Writing programme (permanent staff include: published poets, novelists, short story writers; broadcast playwrights; performed theatre and screen writers; publishers; literary editors; and community arts project managers), we have a Level 6 work related learning module called The Writer At Work.

Freelance/Self-employment models will be encouraged as this is absolutely representative of the way in which subject skills are best represented in the employment world. Existing industry links will be used to finesse and deliver and assess the module.

Group work is encouraged, facilitating a more rounded view, with individuals within a group adopting different roles within the simulated world of work. The module will be delivered in the form of lectures, workshops, private study, tutorials, case-studies, field visits and industry-sourced masterclasses. Specifically, students will be taught how to prepare a Learning Agreement and how to produce a portfolio which includes an awareness of personal development in its reflective element.

Students will be assigned industry-specialist supervisors wherever possible and will be taught how to manage all aspects of their project, in terms of funding, resources, production and marketing.

Writing as a professional skill is embedded in all Creative Writing modules throughout the course. The transferable skills which the student acquires in modules at all levels, cultivate the personal skills required of a freelance writer: self-starting, project management, teamwork, a dynamic model of objective management, self-criticism, meeting deadlines, industry-standard presentation, and audience/market awareness.

External Quality Benchmarks

All programmes leading to LJMU awards have been designed and approved in accordance with the UK Quality Code for Higher Education, including the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications in the UK (FHEQ) and subject benchmark statements where applicable.

The University is subject to periodic review of its quality and standards by the Quality Assurance Agency (QAA) Published review reports are available on the QAA website at www.qaa.ac.uk

Programmes which are professionally accredited are reviewed by professional, statutory and regulatory bodies (PSRBs) and such programmes must meet the competencies/standards of those PSRBs.

Support for students and their learning

The University aims to provide students with access to appropriate and timely information, support and guidance to ensure that they are able to benefit fully from their time at LJMU. All students are assigned a Personal Tutor to provide academic support and when necessary signpost students to the appropriate University support services.

Students are able to access a range of professional services including:

- Advice on practical aspects of study and how to use these opportunities to support and enhance their personal and academic development. This includes support for placements and careers guidance.
- Student Advice and Wellbeing Services provide students with advice, support and information, particularly in the areas of: student funding and financial matters, disability, advice and support to international students, study support, accommodation, health, wellbeing and counselling.
- Students studying for an LJMU award at a partner organisation will have access to local support services

Methods for evaluating and improving the quality and standards of teaching and learning

Student Feedback and Evaluation

The University uses the results of student feedback from internal and external student surveys (such as module evaluations, the NSS and PTES), module evaluation questionnaires and meetings with student representatives to improve the quality of programmes.

Staff development

The quality of teaching is assured through staff review and staff development in learning, teaching and assessment.

Internal Review

All programmes are reviewed annually and periodically, informed by a range of data and feedback, to ensure quality and standards of programmes and to make improvements to programmes.

External Examining

External examiners are appointed to programmes to assess whether:

- the University is maintaining the threshold academic standards set for awards in accordance with the FHEQ and applicable subject benchmark statements
- the assessment process measures student achievement rigorously and fairly against the intended outcomes of the programme(s) and is conducted in line with University policies and regulations
- the academic standards are comparable with those in other UK higher education institutions of which external examiners have experience
- the achievement of students are comparable with those in other UK higher education institutions of which the external examiners have experience and to provide informative comment and recommendations on:

- good practice and innovation relating to learning, teaching and assessment observed by external examiners
- opportunities to enhance the quality of the learning opportunities provided to students

Please note:

This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content, teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in module and programme guides.
