Educational aims of the programme

1. To provide students with a stimulating, research informed, academic programme, including both core and optional modules, with clear progression through the degree, and with clear learning outcomes.
2. To provide a dynamic and contemporary programme which stimulates the sociological imagination and engages students with the history of the discipline, and its central theoretical, methodological and substantive aspects.
3. To provide an environment which facilitates and encourages student centred learning, that is inclusive and accessible to all students, and supports them as they begin to independently research the social world using appropriate quantitative and/or qualitative techniques.
4. To provide at level 4 core modules introducing theory and method and a range of areas of sociology including social policy, inequalities, and culture in local, national and global contexts; these themes can be explored further in core (theory and method) and themed optional modules at level 5, with level 6 being made up of further themed optional modules. Hence a pathway can be constructed by the student built around specific themes.
5. To provide graduates with the appropriate subject knowledge and attributes, together with a range of transferable skills, and the ability to take responsibility for their own learning, to pursue a career related to the subject area, in general employment, or further study.
6. To encourage students to engage with the development of employability skills, including their completion of a self-awareness statement.
7. To provide a programme that enables students to recognise their citizenship in local, national and global communities and societies, and to appreciate their role in addressing social conditions, resisting prejudice, and improving social justice for all utilising the theoretical insights and evidence based findings of sociology.
8. To appreciate the importance of ethical issues in all forms of sociological data collection, analysis and argumentation and the contested nature of social life, to develop a reflexive sociological understanding of world views alternative to their own.
9. To provide opportunities to sociologically investigate societies other than the UK and to facilitate exchange and study/field work educational visits to those countries to further understanding, analysis and knowledge.
10. Appreciate the distinctive character of Sociology in relation to other forms of understanding, such as its relation to other disciplines and to everyday explanations.

22. Work independently, demonstrating skills of self-organisation, time management, the ability for critical self-reflection and self-improvement.

23. Collaborate with others to achieve collective goals, and discuss and present ideas and interpretations with others in a clear and reasoned way.

24. Assess and analyse the ethical implications of research and enquiry.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment

The methods used to enable outcomes to be achieved and demonstrated are as follows:

The programme incorporates staff-led and student-centred strategies with a progressive emphasis on the latter as students develop as independent learners.

The former includes both formal and interactive lectures, and seminars, which provide opportunities to present ideas, discuss and reflect. The latter involve small group activities, tutorials, workshops and enquiry-based learning.

These are designed to:

Foster student progression

Stimulate interest and encourage participation

Provide equal opportunities to develop learning skills, at all levels

Encourage critical analysis and the application of theory

Utilise ICT and Canvas

The Sociology Assessment strategy is guided by School, University and QAA guidelines and ensures that:

Assessment, as part of the learning process, involves feedback (diagnostic, formative or summative) that is timely and constructive.

Criteria of attainment are given in handbooks and module assignments.

Assessment across the programme is planned, and designed to be coherent, balanced and to facilitate the achievement of learning outcomes.

Assessment meets the criteria (QAA and School) of validity, reliability and consistency.

Assessment takes account of students with particular needs.

The programme utilises a wide range of assessments including Essays, Exams, reports, portfolios, projects, self-reflective diaries, biography, leaflet, book reviews, enquiry-based learning, presentations (written and oral) and, at level 6, an optional dissertation, and opportunities for work placement.

Intellectual skills are strongly linked to the development of knowledge and understanding. Lectures provide the foundations of and models for students to develop and consolidate their intellectual skills, whole workshops, seminars, tutorials and independent learning provides opportunities for students to practice and apply these intellectual skills.

The assessment of intellectual skills is closely linked with subject knowledge and assessment, however the focus is upon the student's ability to recognise, construct and defend arguments, to undertake critical analysis and to identify and resolve intellectual problems. A variety of written coursework and exam based assessments focus directly on the student's ability to construct rigorous arguments and analysis. While the more applied nature of some assessments (briefing papers, blogs, case studies, reports), particularly those requiring students to understand and undertake Sociological research encourages students to creatively develop their intellectual skills.

All teaching and learning activities focus on developing and improving communication skills: lectures enable students to become effective listeners who can assimilate ideas and information; discussions in workshops and small group settings develop spoken communication skills, collaboration and interpersonal skills. Students are also encouraged and supported, via tutor guidance and the VLE, to undertake independent learning which, in turn, promotes planning, organisational and time-management skills.

All assessment utilized on the programme encourages students to develop their communication skills and to present arguments and ideas with precision and clarity. Achievement of good time management and organizational skills is demonstrated by students completing work on time to a satisfactory standard.

These skills are introduced in 4106SOC: Introduction to Sociology, at level four. Thereafter, core and option modules at levels 5 and involve a combination of student-centred learning in both collective (seminars/workshops, group project work etc) and individual contexts (independent learning, tutorials, dissertations). Teaching is block time-tabled into 3 hour sessions.

The variety of learning experiences and assessment tasks is designed to stimulate interest and encourage participation, and to provide opportunities for students with differing capabilities and aptitudes to develop transferable skills.

The variety of assessment on the programme ensures that these transferable key skills are assessed at various points throughout the degree.

Programme structure - programme rules and modules

The programme is taught within the University Academic Framework. Students must take 120 credits at each level of the programme (Levels 3, 4, 5 and 6). Each Level of the programme should normally be completed in one academic year. Modules are of two types: core and options.

At Levels 3 and 4 students will take a core programme of 120 credits. At level 5, 80 credits are from core modules whilst the remaining 40 credits are from optional modules.

At Level 5 there is a mix of core and option modules, the only restriction for option registration is that students cannot take the following two modules together, 5109IRP: Politics and Popular Culture and 5110IRP: International Organisations, taking both these modules is a barred combination.

At level 6 there are no core modules. With three modules that last 2 semesters, with the Dissertation (40 credits) and Sociology at Work 2 and International Field Work in Sociology, it is not possible for a student in either programme, to take all three 'independent studies' modules, but only to do a combination of any two.

The programme will offer the opportunity for 60 credits of study abroad at L5. Students will be enrolled on a 480 credit honours with study abroad programme. A 60 credit Level 5 study abroad module 5109SOC will normally replace the second semester modules on the standard programme. This study abroad should cover the same learning outcomes as the modules being replaced. The modules to be studied in the host institution must be agreed in advance. The Level 5 mean for the final award mark will be calculated based upon the 120 credits at Level 5.

The programme will offer the opportunity of an additional year of study abroad following Level 5. Students will be enrolled on a 600 credit honours with study abroad programme. Of the 600 credits, 120 will be taken via 5108SOC Study Year Abroad. The modules to be studied at the host institution must be agreed in advance. The Level 5 mean for the final award mark will be calculated upon the 240 credits at Level 5.

Information about assessment regulations

All programmes leading to LJMU awards operate within the University's Academic Framework.
<https://www.ljmu.ac.uk/about-us/public-information/academic-quality-and-regulations/academic-framework>

Opportunities for work-related learning (location and nature of activities)

Personal development planning is integrated into the personal tutor arrangements at Levels 4, 5 and 6. Work related learning is embedded at Level 5 in the 5117SOC Sociology at Work 1 Module and at Level 6 in the 6114SOC Sociology at Work 2 module- 20 credits each (proposal and placement / report).

All LJMU undergraduate programs are required to incorporate into a L4 module an assessment item of the submission of a personal Self Awareness Statement. Students have the opportunity to choose from work-based/related/transferrable skills modules at L5 and L6, while the programme's PDP system provides opportunities for students to reflect on and document their achievements inside and outside of university and think about future employability paths.

Methods for evaluating and improving the quality and standards of teaching and learning

Student Feedback and Evaluation

The University uses the results of student feedback from internal and external student surveys (such as module evaluations, the NSS and PTES), module evaluation questionnaires and meetings with student representatives to improve the quality of programmes.

Staff development

The quality of teaching is assured through staff review and staff development in learning, teaching and assessment.

Internal Review

All programmes are reviewed annually and periodically, informed by a range of data and feedback, to ensure quality and standards of programmes and to make improvements to programmes.

External Examining

External examiners are appointed to programmes to assess whether:

- the University is maintaining the threshold academic standards set for awards in accordance with the FHEQ and applicable subject benchmark statements
- the assessment process measures student achievement rigorously and fairly against the intended outcomes of the programme(s) and is conducted in line with University policies and regulations
- the academic standards are comparable with those in other UK higher education institutions of which external examiners have experience
- the achievement of students are comparable with those in other UK higher education institutions of which the external examiners have experience and to provide informative comment and recommendations on:

- good practice and innovation relating to learning, teaching and assessment observed by external examiners
- opportunities to enhance the quality of the learning opportunities provided to students

Please note:

This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content, teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in module and programme guides.
